

Sexual harassment

You have a legal right under the Sex Discrimination Act not to be sexually harassed whilst at work. This section explains your rights and lets you know what you can do if you think you are experiencing sexual harassment.

Some changes to the law on sexual harassment came into force on 1 October 2010. This section covers your rights in situations concerning sexual harassment that took place both before and after that date.

Read about:

- Sexual harassment: your rights
- Sexual harassment: what the law says

▲ back to top

New law in force

The Equality Act came into force on 1 October 2010. Some of the information on this page may be out of date.

- ▶ What is the Equality Act 2010?
- ▶ Read guidance based on the new law